Opening Sessions (8.30am – 10.15am)

8.30am	Registration
9.00am	Engineering's education festival event "Creating the world that never was" Opening address by A/Prof. Maurice Pagnucco
9.10am	Keynote A create-first pedagogy for Engineering – What happens when we design our programmes like Engineers? Opening Keynote by Prof. Claire Lucas, Deputy Head of Department (Education), Department of Engineering, Kings College London This keynote challenges traditional engineering education by advocating a create-first pedagogy, driven by practical, hands-on learning. It proposes that we move beyond rigid modular taxonomies and the water-fall style 'Blooms' based curricula, which often arise from departmental structural silos, towards an agile/iterative and multi-disciplinary learning environment. New academic team topologies are proposed inspired by design cultures found in industry. Laboratories are re-imagined as a key component of a design, make, test workflows rather than being built around demonstration of physical-phenomena. Learning outcomes are reimagined as non-functional 'how' journeys of becoming rather than 'what' possession of knowledge and understanding.

Afternoon Workshop (12.30pm-1.30pm)

Roadmaps to impact: Mapping SDGs through our curricula

Facilitators: Dr Ruth Fisher, Dr Helen Rutlidge, Dr Javier Videla Mario, Dr Bojan Tamburic, Prof Richard Stuetz

This workshop builds on active projects in the schools of Civil and Environmental, and Chemical Engineering. The session will provide an understanding of how our courses address sustainability and the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) will be discussed-drawing on examples from different activities being undertaken in the University. There will be a focus on student understanding and alignment in both the undergraduate and HDR cohorts. A keyword matching tool will be used by participants in the session to enable them to conduct their own mapping with course materials (or any text!).

Participants will engage in discussions about how links between SDGs and course material can be made clearer or introduced. With a focus on the constructive alignment of course learning outcomes to assessments and activities.

Come along if you are currently involved in mapping, interested and/or want to ensure our graduates make an impact.

Conclusion (2.00pm-3.00pm)
